KUALA LUMPUR: In conjunction with National Day celebrations, Etiqa Insurance and Takaful recently released a web film titled Pokok Oh Pokok with the aim to cultivate patriotism among Malaysians. Etiqa brand and communications head Michelle Wee, in a statement today, said the web film is based on a true story about a dedicated teacher, whose determination to impart knowledge in his indigenous students made headlines in 2019.

"This project is inspired by a true story of a teacher from a primary school in Muadzam Shah (a township in Rompin, Pahang).

"His dedication as an educator and his sense of patriotism should serve as an example to us all.

"At Etiqa, we hope that this film can raise the awareness that all children have a right to be successful in life, which begins with a strong foundation in education.

"The message conveyed aligns with Etiqa's vision of 'Making the World a Better Place'.

"This web film is also proof that Etiqa cares about the social sustainability of Malaysians," Wee added.

Pokok Oh Pokok tells the story of two indigenous children, Yam and Jemah, who skip school after the former injures her leg during a cultural dance rehearsal in their village.

The next day, their teacher finds that Yam and Jemah are absent, adding to an already long list of children from the community who have been skipping school.

The teacher then decides to "bring" his classroom to the children's village and starts teaching under a big tree.

The web film can be viewed on Etiqa's official YouTube channel.

Etiqa kembali ke Pulau Tioman untuk membiak terumbu karang

Etiqa menyumbangkanRM19,000 untuk kelengkapan dan pembaikkan Surau Kampung Salang.

Oleh MEDIA MULIA 23 Ogos 2023, 8:41 pm

PETALING JAYA: Etiqa General Takaful Berhad meningkatkan usaha kelestariannya dengan menilai projek terumbu karang angkatnya, dan membiakkan terumbu karang baharu di bawah Projek Pemeliharaan Marin Etiqa 2023.

Ekspedisi selama tiga hari ini melibatkan 30 orang sukarelawan daripada Etiqa, dengan kerjasama Kelab Legasi Selam Skuba Malaysia (Leges Divers) dan Pusat Penyelidikan Marin Universiti Kebangsaan Malaysia (EKOMAR) di Kampung Salang, Pulau Tioman dari 18 hingga 20 Ogos 2023.

Objektif utama Projek Pemeliharaan Marin Etiqa adalah untuk menghidupkan semula ekosistem marin tempatan dan memupuk kesedaran tentang keperluan memelihara ekosistem marin.

Tahun lalu, Etiqa memberi nafas baharu kepada 9 unit bingkai terumbu di Salang House Reef dengan memperkenalkan terumbu karang baharu daripada pelbagai spesies. Ekosistem terumbu karang ini juga menjadi tempat perlindungan pelbagai jenis makhluk marin, termasuk ikan yu sirip hitam, penyu Hawksbill dan penyu hijau yang semakin terancam dan penting untuk keseimbangan ekosistem tersebut.

Selain daripada pembiakan terumbu karang, Etiqa General Takaful Berhad turut menyumbangkan RM19,000 dari Dana Amal Jariah mereka untuk kerja-kerja pembaikkan Surau Kampung Salang yang melibatkan pemasangan permaidani baru, kipas kipas angin, dan sebuah alat pembersih vakum (vacuum cleaner).

Bersama Leges Divers dan penduduk kampung, para sukarelawan Etiqa juga telah mengubah pusat maklumat kampung menjadi sebuah tempat tarikan foto yang menarik dengan melukis mural hidupan laut.

Ketua Pegawai Eksekutif Etiqa General Takaful Berhad (EGTB), Shahrul Azuan Mohamed, mengucapkan setinggi penghargaannya kepada sukarelawan dan rakan strategik yang menjayakan Projek Pemeliharaan Marin Etiqa 2023.

"Etiqa dengan bangganya menyokong usaha pemulihan terumbu karang di Pulau Tioman dan menceriakan Kampung Salang.

"Usaha ini terlaksana berkat bimbingan daripada Leges Divers dan penduduk tempatan," katanya.

Selain itu, program ini tidak hanya membantu menyegarkan biodiversiti marin, tetapi memberi keselesaan kepada masyarakat Muslim dengan memperbaik surau mereka juga. Program ini merupakan bukti komitmen Etiqa dalam merealisasikan misi korporatnya untuk Menjadikan Dunia Sebuah Tempat yang Lebih Baik, atau 'Making the World a Better Place', selaras dengan Pengantaraan Berasaskan Nilai (VBI) dengan penekanan terhadap pemeliharaan alam sekitar dan kualiti sosial. – UTUSAN

4 August 2023, The Star Etiqa Retirement Survey

Senior Share

AFTER decades of hard work, many of us imagine retirement like a well-deserved holiday.

A survey published by Etiga and Takaful last month showed that 88% of Malaysians want to spend more time with family, 75% want to travel, and 55% dream about taking up a new hobby.

However, as 46% of Malaysians don't plan their retirement, only 23% believe they can retire comfortably. For years, studies have warned of the

For years, studies have warmed of the retirement crisis. The pandemic didn't help, pushing many of us to tap precious savings. However, studies also suggest some useful rethinking that can help boost your golden years.

What the science says

Quality of life centres on feeling good in your body, being happy in your relationships, and taking part in activities you enjoy. Financial stability is an important ingredient for all of these.

À study of 210 Malaysian retirees in 2021 led by Professor Nor Azilah Husin at Universiti Selangor found that financial resources, followed by healthcare, influence retirees' quality of life most. Thankfully, a whopping 73.3% reported feeling healthy. In 2015, a study of 768 Malaysians in

In 2015, a study of 768 Malaysians in Kuala Lumpur and Selangor led by Dr Ainoriza Mohd Aini at Universiti Malaya found that seniors see property as an investment rather than a home for their comfort.

While more than half believed that their bedrooms, kitchens, stairs, and other facilities needed renovating, a whopping 66% referred to age in place. Just 22% were willing to move as part of their retirement and only 5% were interested in considering a US-style retirement village with purpose-built retirement properties serviced by bespoke medical, cleaning and other support services. Finally, dozens of studies in various

Finally, dozens of studies in various communities have shown that many grandparents feel pressured into giving up their retirement and resent being pushed into rearing their grandchildren full-time. As Dr Qing Lin and Dr Jingyu Mao, researchers at the University of Edinburgh, observed in their 2022 study of 120 families in China, this is a complex issue that involves changing perceptions of generational duty and care. Unless addressed fairly and directly, it creates tension and struggles within the family.

Putting this together, several points come to mind.

Rethink your finances

As you've been in the habit of thinking of your spending in terms of a work week, step one is to reassess your finances. Take notes of everything you spend for

Take notes of everything you spend for two months. Don't change what you're doing; just note everything down. This will give you clear insight into spending.

Financial stability is an important part of your senior years. Make a note of how you spend your money and gain insight into your spending habits. – Photos: 123rf.com

For a comfortable life after retirement

We are living longer and longer, and hopefully staying healthier too. So how do you live well after retirement – when you're on a budget and not a millionaire? And what is 'well', anyway?

Rethink your home

We don't like change and tend to move only if absolutely necessary. However, as a home is a major cost, whether you rent or own, it's sensible to think like a banker.

If you are concerned about money running out, downsizing or moving a few miles can result in extra cash to top up your investments.

Either way, also look at your home in terms of health needs. Do you have slipproof tiles? If (God forbid) you fall and break a bone, can you access your shower, move from room to room, and reach your bedroom easily with a cane or a wheelchair?

Similarly, cars are money sinks but they are vital for a commute. When you're retired, assess and rethink your transport.

Cook wonderful meals

We love our 24/7 takeout but there are two downsides. Commercially prepared dishes are typically high in sugar, fat and processed ingredients. Also, as the seller needs to make a profit, they're expensive.

In working life, takeout is efficient and we close one eye to the health implications. In retirement, staying fit and flexible is key to staying independent.

Preparing your own meals is cheaper, will pay off in better physical health and it's creative.

Aside from being an excellent hobby, cooking brings the family together. There's nothing better than eating grandpa's home-made chicken curry Kapitan and grandma's popiah.

Have a family meeting

Mind-reading isn't a human skill, so it's best to be clear about your retirement intentions, worries and needs. To avoid misunderstandings, work out what you want from your retirement now and when you are older. Share these plans with the family.

It may not be easy, especially if your needs don't align. However, you can negotiate with each other. Then hold regular discussions so you all support each other fairly and with love.

Etiqa Insurance Singapore has launched a new 'With You for the Ride' brand campaign as it looks to ignite the spirit of adventure among Singaporeans. It plans to do so through its suite of insurance products that have been designed to meet the needs of its diverse customer base.

"We believe that life is meant to be lived with enthusiasm and a spirit of adventure," said Shirley Tan, chief marketing officer at Etiqa Insurance Singapore. "Our fresh With You for the Ride' campaign encapsulates this very essence, illustrating that we stand by individuals through every twist and turn, defying the constraints of age." The campaign features a short film that highlights how life's unpredictable journeys can become less overwhelming when one is properly insured. It features individuals from various age groups as they embark on life's adventures such as 20-yearolds having parties, 30-year-olds advancing in their careers and 40-year-olds building up their families to name a few.

Through the film, Etiqa seeks to challenge the way insurance is portrayed and utilises compelling personal narratives and dynamic visuals to humanise insurance to a wider audience while also making relatable the aspirations and dreams of Singaporeans, according to a statement by the brand.

"We fully comprehend the value of trust in cultivating enduring relationships, and our fresh campaign embodies Etiqa's dedication to protection and transparency, pledging to be the unwavering partner that our customers can depend on," added Tan.

Etiqa's products featured in the campaign include youth-oriented plans that foster financial growth, protection solutions for adults seeking stability and security and retirement-focused products that ensure peace of mind during the golden years. The campaign will also span across digital, social media and out-of-home channels including bus wraps, MRT stations, and movie theatres in Singapore.

Insurance companies in Singapore have been ramping up their campaign efforts as of late. Recently, Income Insurance collaborated with American rock band The Calling to release an original song and music video for its new Protection campaign. Titled Fallin Apart, the single was created with agency BBH Singapore and aims to encourage conversations around the underinvestment in health and critical illness coverage in Singapore.

"Now more than ever is the right time to invest in life, health and critical illness cover following the aftermath of the pandemic and the current economic downturn where unforeseen circumstances can hit anytime," said Stella Tan, vice president and head of brand and segment marketing at Income Insurance.

Etiqa Philippines' gadget insurance recognized anew at Insurance Asia Awards 2023

by digitalph / August 14, 2023

As seen on: Manila Standard

Etiqa Philippines' innovative gadget insurance has once again demonstrated its excellence after being hailed as Insurtech Initiative of the Year at the Insurance Asia Awards 2023.

As a pioneering product, Gadget Protection was Etiqa's first venture into embedded insurance with a major e-commerce platform together in partnership with digital insurance provider, Igloo. Etiqa's insuretech product first earned a nod from the famed International Finance Awards (IFA) as the Best Insuretech Initiative in the Philippines for 2022.

At the core, the regional insurer's first gadget microinsurance aims to protect users of smartphones and other electronic devices from unexpected repair costs brought about by unwanted incidents.

Affirming this successful foray into gadget insurance for Etiqa were the 7 million new policies they have generated in Shopee alone by the end of 2022.

Recognizing successful ventures

With the recent challenges in the insurance industry, Insurance Asia Awards shines the spotlight on outstanding companies that propelled their business to new heights to innovate further and provide unique offerings to their clients.

Since its inception eight years ago, the programme, which covers countries in the Asia Pacific region, highlights the hard work, dedication, and creativity of regional and country-level insurance companies who have stepped up to meet the growing demands of the ever-changing industry.

Organized by Singapore-based leading business information group, the nominees were judged by topnotch insurance leaders in Asia based on the following criteria: uniqueness and innovation; effectiveness and impact, as well as dynamism.

Supporting mobile-first mindset

"Pushing for a mobile and digital-first approach in the country involves securing the very gadgets that make it possible. We are honored to be recognized by the Insurance Asia Awards for a product that has been transformational not just for our company but more so for our kababayans," said Rico Bautista, President and CEO of Etiqa Philippines. He added: "As we are constantly looking for new ways to use technology to improve the customer experience, this award is a validation of our efforts in championing insuretech to provide seamless solutions and services for the industry and the entire country."

The pocket-friendly, accessible, and straightforward gadget insurance Cracked Screen Protection and Electronics are readily available online and can be availed immediately before checkout of an electronic or mobile device through Shopee. They can easily top up or purchase the insurance before checkout and activate the policy via Igloo Portal.

For the same product, GCash e-wallet holders, meanwhile, can avail of Phone Screen Protect (PSP) and Full Phone Protection (360) via an affordable phone protection plan under GInsure for as low as Php 50 annually. To make it even more convenient and purely digital, clients can purchase phone protection plans, view their policies, and file claims right through the app.

With the mission of making the Philippines a better place, Etiqa ensures that it will continue being a significant player in the insurance industry by offering life and non-life insurance products that leverage on technology in improving the customer experience.

KonsultaMD, Etiqa Philippines partner up to make digital health more accessible to Filipinos

AUGUST 4, 2023 / HEALTH & WELLNESS

KonsultaMD and Etiqa Philippines have embarked on a partnership to enhance digital health access for Filipinos. This initiative enables Etiqa members and their dependents to avail of free consultations from KonsultaMD.

aysay (L), CEO of KonsultaMD, and Rico Bautista, CEO ai of Ftiga (B), seal the deal with a bandshake.

The alliance was formally unveiled at a recent contract signing event attended by key executives from both companies, led by Cholo Tagaysay, CEO of KonsultaMD, and Rico Bautista, President and CEO of Etiqa. With this collaboration, KonsultaMD becomes a key health partner in Etiqa's extensive network of over 1,500 hospitals and clinics across the country. Augmented by KonsultaMD's large network of over 1,000 healthcare professionals on their platform, Etiqa members can now access a broad array of doctors and specialists through the app.

The synergy of these two ecosystems seeks to foster a more comprehensive approach to healthcare and provide a more affordable, accessible, and robust health solution for Filipinos. KonsultaMD and Etiqa Philippines, leaders in telehealth and health insurance, respectively, look forward to introducing additional services in the coming months.

"As we develop more services in the KonsultaMD ecosystem, we would still need partners who can help amplify the reach of our services. We are in the business of democratizing healthcare, and Etiqa is the perfect partner to help reach that goal," said Tagaysay.

Dr. Fe De Leon, Senior Assistant Vice President of the Medical Operations Department of Etiqa Philippines, noted how the partnership seeks to address limited access to fundamental healthcare facilities and services in the Philippines.

"The biggest challenge for the Philippine healthcare sector is the lack of access to even the most basic healthcare facilities and services including teleconsultation, particularly in the provincial areas. We hope that this partnership will provide accessibility and quality healthcare services while being a cost-effective and efficient practice of preventive medicine," she said.

Etiqa members can avail of free online doctor consultations from KonsultaMD through a simple three-step process. First, they must call the KonsultaMD Hotline at 02-7798-8000 (press 0) or email @wellness@konsulta.md, and provide the Wellness Representative their policy number and mobile number, a one-time requirement for initial consultation. Following this, members should download the KonsultaMD app and register using the same mobile number given to the hotline. The Etiqa health plan will be activated within the app in about thirty minutes upon successful registration.

A portfolio company of Globe's 917Ventures, KonsultaMD is helping democratize healthcare through comprehensive, reliable telehealth services including 24/7 doctor access, medical certificates, same-day pharmacy deliveries, at-home diagnostics, and nursing care for newborns and the elderly. It also advocates for mental health consultations, leading efforts to destigmatize such services among Filipinos.

For more information about KonsultaMD, visit https://konsulta.md or download the app on the App Store or Google Play.
